Feather Boas.

-- $11.50-Real Ostrich Feather - culled, first quality, rich lustre, jet black, pure curl. The equal of any Boas in the regular market at $13.50. That's one instance, the whole

Boa line is on the same basis. Is it any wonder that so much of the the retail Boa business of the town is centering here?

White Parasols.

Of course you've been thinking of them-it's their time. We've a great lot of those pretty, white China Silk Parasols, made in the very best manner. A special, with deep double ruffle, is at $3.50the richest Parasol we know of for so little money. White, all-silk Parasols, not to be compared with some low grades of taffeta silks, are $1.75 each.

ENTERTAINMENTS. Hyperion.

Mrs. Potter and Mr. Bellew will appear this evening in "Charlotte Corday." Mrs. Potter has by hard work untiring perseverance and indomitable will power succeeded in placing herself in the front ranks of the world's acresses and the reception accorded her by critics from New York to San Franelsco during her recent American tour has proved conclusively that she has at last succeeded in gaining the position in her native country which has long been accorded her in foreign lands. Mr. Bellew, who has accompanied Mrs. Potter ever since she made her debut, has long been acknowledged in every part of the world as one of the greatest actors of modern times and his remarkable performances in "Charlotte Corday" and "Francillion have astonished even his most ardent admirers. Sale of seats now open.

Charles Hoyt's big speciacular mu-sical comedy, "A Milk White Flag," will be the attraction Wednesday and Thursday evening. "A Milk White Flag" is purely a farce comedy, in which Hoyt has no competitor and is in his very best style, combining claborate scenery and costumes, rapid changes, varied and excellent music so happily as to be both an entertaining play and comic opera combined The musical numbers are new and many. Sale of seats now open.

There was a very lage audience present last evening to witness the first presentation of "The Viking," the new comic opera by Miss Estelle Clayton. The expectations of the audience was high, for the librettist, Miss Clayton, is well known in the musical world. That "The Viking" will be a success wherever it goes is certain, judged from last night's performance.

The following is the cast: Kink Igaliko the Great, a wise and powerful Viking-Burt Haverly

(Father of nothing but boys.) Saga, His Soothsayer, Gilbert Clayton Prince Eric, his son, a hardy Norseman .... Bernard Dyllyn His good for nothing sons (the pauper princes.)

Lief Ericsson, a rival Viking...... (The Father of Nothing but Girls.) Thera, his daughter ..... Grace Reals

Helga, foster mother to the Viking's Princess Njarda, King Igaliko'e niece

Chorus of bardy norsemen and Norsemaids, subjects of the Viking; court ladies, sailors, vassals, barbarians; daughters of the rival Nose king include 100 ladies and gentlemen.

The company is one of strongest that has been seen here since the prime days of Duff and Rice. Burt Haverly proved himself to be a comic opera singer of the first class, as did Gilbert Clayton in a similar role. Bernard Dyllyn's robust voice carried him to glory, as usual. Charlle Kirke, Willie Mandeville and Harry Dietz were mellow and melodious as the three paupe low and melectious as the three pauper princes. John E. Gregson was a su-perior heavy basso. The well know favorite, Beatrice Goldie, sang with her usual expression and grace, which made her popular here in comic opera. Clara Lipman, Grace Reals, late of the Bostonians, and Lillian Green made distinct hits. Rose Cooke was the same delightful character artist that made her popular in New York years ago. Wednesday evening, with the usual matinee Miss Estelle Clayton, the authoress of the book, was present in a box and observed the interpretation of her work with a critical eye. She expressed, at the close, the greatest satisfaction at the unexpected speed and smoothness of the performance, and seemed as sanguine of its success in other fields as she had been here.

A touch of sadness in this original production was given by the absence of the composer, the late deceased young musical genius, Edward Irving Darling, who died too soon to witness the poduction of his last and favorite "Humanity," which W. A. Brady is to produce here at the Grand Opera house the last three days of this week, is said to be a play to take the popular not with the noisy sort, the scenes being presented in war tableaux. Through it all runs a stream of treachery and vindicitiveness in the relations of one man to his fellows. In two of the acts the scenes are laid in South Africa, an entirely new field for the Saturday. Poll's Wonderland Theater.

Many wondered if it was the same old Lew Dockstader who was to appear at the Wonderland yesterday, but no sooner had he walked onto the stage than everyone present realized that it was the same brilliant genius who has so often entertained New Haven audiences with his rare humor. He is funnier than ever, and especially enjoyable were his keenly satirical references to local topics. The company supporting him is a splendidly strong combination. McAvoy and May are delightfully entertaining in their brilliantly eccentric comedy flashes, and the Misses O'Nefil and Sutherland do some vivacious sing ing and nimble dancing. Hastings and Marion, Morton and Eckoff, Jules and Ella Garrison, William Rowe and H. C. Stanley also distinguished them selves on a bill that is consistently strong from the first to the closing number.

City Mission Notes.

At the annual meeting last evening 'The Original Boston Brown Bread Mixture," Free Loaf of the missionary society of the Yale Divinity school Mr. Wallace, the general secretary for the seminary year now closing, reported that 90 per cent, of the members of the seminary had engaged some form of volunteer Christian work during the year. valuable assistance at the City Mission hall, thirty evening meetings had been conducted on week nights by a committee of four, and as many addresses delivered at the Sunday evening service. After opening exercises by the mis-sionary pastor, assisted by Mr. Hriggs of Yale seminary, Mr. H. F. Rall of the seminary made a very able address at the Sunday evening service at the City Mission hall. There were special musical selections, including a duet by Miss Haverfield and Mr. George Loveday, a tenor solo by Mr. Loveday and a sol by Mr. W. D. Bissell. The work of the City Missionary association was presented at the Howard avenue Congregational church on Sun-secretary of the building committee, in connection with the annual offering of that church for this work.
